[PDF] Chaput P.There is a lot of love for the original Lethal Combat but every so often, somebody decides it is time for a new lethal combat (PC and XBox360). If you are that somebody, this is the game for you. The interesting aspect of this game is that the combat is not only lethal, but the biggest kill is a kill blow to the head (not a cut from a knife). This makes sure that if you miss, the damage is still there. It also makes things a bit more interesting since you can only really attack the head to get rid of the opponent. Controlling the weapons and your combo is quite easy. There are three weapons to choose from, each with their own advantages and disadvantages. One is the pistol, the next is the axe and the final one is the sword. Some moves can only be done with a specific weapon, like some kick moves. Weapons can be changed at anytime. The combo system can be a bit fickle, sometimes the combos end up in a weird positions and can make things a bit difficult to finish off the opponent. There is very little to this game. There are 20 levels and each level is about 2-3 minutes long. If you make it to the end of the level, you get bonus points but there is no time limit. There is also a high score area, but so far nobody has managed to get a high score. The graphics are alright. The animations can be a little bit messy. Each weapon looks a bit different, but it is not a big deal. You get a knife on the sides of your screen, an axe in the upper left and a sword to the lower right. Both the axe and the pistol have what looks like a cutting edge on the right side. The sound is horrible.
