7. In the Timeline panel (Figure 4-4), click the Event sublayer in the Channels panel. Photoshop prompts you to choose an action for the new image event. A dialog box appears. Figure 4-4: When you click an image event layer in the timeline panel, you see a dialog box asking for a specific type of action. 8. Click the Browse button to navigate to a Photoshop file and choose Action > Convert to Photoshop (see Figure 4-5). Photoshop converts the selected file to a Photoshop file (.psd) and places it in the appropriate location. 9. Click OK and click OK in the dialog box that appears. The action window now appears (see Figure 4-6). You see a sample image overlaid onto the converted file. If you scroll over the image, you see the image files appear in the dialog box. If the image is a multipage file, then each page appears as a separate image in the window. Figure 4-5: Choose the action type. Figure 4-6: When you click the OK button, the converted file is created and placed in the proper location. 10. Click the Add Layer button and then drag the converted file into the Timeline panel. The image file appears on the timeline. ## Creating Custom Actions and Triggers When you want to automate a common task, you can create a custom action to perform that action. Most of the actions available in Photoshop are built into the application, but you can create your own. When you create custom actions, you tell Photoshop what action to take, when, and where to take it. A `_trigger_` is a piece of programming code that enables you to assign a specific action to a certain action event. A trigger is created by typing custom programming code in a text editor. You can save these custom actions and triggers in your Photoshop action library, so you can use them later. The action window contains a type-in field that accepts programming code. This programming code is actually a string of text, which you type into the field. You can then set a value for the action by using the programming code. For example, let's say that you want to create an action that adds a dollar sign to every name in a file. You type `"$"`.

Q: Javascript Unexpected Identifier? I am getting an 'Unexpected identifier' on the syntax below I am getting 'Uncaught SyntaxError: Unexpected identifier' on the line 'this.onLoad = function()' function Canvas1() { var con = "con1"; function set_con() { con = "con2"; window.open (con); } function Load() { this.onLoad = function() { } } Canvas1.prototype.onLoad = function() { } Canvas1.prototype.onLoad(); A: You have a ; in the wrong place. It should be right before the function declaration: function Canvas1() { var con = "con1"; function set_con() { con = "con2"; window.open (con); } function Load() { this.onLoad = function() { } } this.onLoad = function() { // etc. } } 1. An N64 controller Disclaimer: There is a WIP patch in the works which will fix a few bugs and add a few features. However, the current build does not feature any of these. The game works on an original N64 controller, or a GameCube Controller, and cannot be played on the Wii Remote. If you have never played The Wrath of Gunclod before, this is a very good place to start. If you are unsure what the Wrath of Gunclod is, read the Readme.txt included
