Now, this will be the first of the two main games I will be working on. While the first game will be the main Elder Scrolls game, the second one will be a spinoff where you will be able to travel to a totally different world, get different armor and weapons and fight alongside a friend. The main character is a character called Tarnished, the leader of the Savage Legion, Tarnished is a powerful warrior. He got the power to do this by the Goddess of War, Delzmir, that grants him the gift of the Shades and the Sevenfold Blade, and he now uses these powers to fight and protect. Being a savage, he isn't very nice, so his friend, who also is an Elder Scrolls character, and he go out to journey of the Lands Between. Here, you will come across different tribes of people, like the Vanylis, the Wild Ones, and the Basileans. Through the creation of your character, you will get to interact with these people and learn things about the future of these races, and Tarnished will decide what he needs to do so that nothing ever happens and he can be a savior for these people. The game's story is epic and mature, but at the same time fun, having most of the times a little funny, with very sensual game elements and erotic scenes. The goal of our team is to deliver a fun, mature, thrilling RPG experience that explores a solid story, with attractive character growth and mature sex scenes, and offer fluid combat and strategic gameplay, while implementing asynchronous multiplayer game that allows players to form a party and travel together. • Account Administrator • Game related Scripting • Artwork, Texturing, 3d Modeling • Game Design • Project planning • 3d-Programming • Streaming We're currently looking for a Texturing and 3D Modeling Artist for our team. Q: $scope variable scope not working on nested ng-repeat I have a json on my view where the root structure is dependent on the value of weather_mode. For example: { "Response": { "cells": { "Countries": { "Snowsport": { "Country": "Almaty" }, "Crosscountry": { "Country": "Karatau" }, "Seasons": { "Country": "Summer" } }, "Country": "Moscow", "Fitness": { "Country": "Moscow", "Season": "Fitness" }, "Local": { "Country": "Moscow", "Location": "Crimea"} } } } My page represents the map below, where each country is a section in the top row and each fitness or local section is a row below. I have a function in my controller called getThingsByType(string countryType) which takes a country and returns a string. For example getThingsByType("Local") returns "Russia" and getThingsByType("Fitness") returns "Moscow". In my HTML I have a ng-repeat on the graph div which shows countries in the top row, and rows below of cells, if the weather_mode = fitness. Each row should display the cells which match a type of countryType. The following is the ng-repeat in my HTML page:
