This statement

followed up on a previous positive note on the regulatory front in which Dell's CEO Michael Dell had earlier said that there is a "real expectation" of receiving regulator approval for the deal. Late last month, Dell had unveiled an $60 billion plan that involved the sale of its x86 server business to Japanese multinational rival Hitachi. However, that part of the deal has been put on hold after Dell found it difficult to finalize the deal with its Chinese investors. In parallel to that deal, Dell had also held exploratory discussions with EMC shareholders about the possibility of a tie-up of the world's second largest IT services provider with its IT infrastructure vendor.

Back in February, Dell had disclosed that it is finalizing the acquisition of EMC's storage assets for about $60 billion in cash. In June, Dell had disclosed that it has reached an agreement with all the shareholders of EMC about the proposed merger. In October, Dell had said that it had opened a second tranche of pre-screening discussions with EMC shareholders about the proposed acquisition. Ever since the first round of pre-screening was completed, Dell has been exploring the possibility of raising equity investment to fund its planned $60 billion acquisition of EMC, which is expected to close by year end. "We're still working with our partners and other shareholders of EMC and intend to finalize the regulatory process in the coming weeks. At this point, I can't predict which country or region will complete the final review. Once we've received it,

The new train rolling stock (ETR 1000) for the Freccia Rossa (ETR or Airport Express RA.3), destined to the Airport Train (AT) project, held a Ministère de l'Interieur (MI) and RFI test on Tuesday. The ETR1000 has been designed at the Norma factory in Sant'Olcese. It will be driven by Driver Operation and Telematic Control (DOTC). The first ETR1000 unit has already been delivered. The second will be delivered in April and the two remaining will be delivered in the second half of 2006, while the ETR1000 will be completely delivered in 2007. 40 e-bikes are included, which comprises the future rolling stock for the Metropolis and Fuveau projects. The Italian market, in the meantime, will start being served by the Metropolitana, which will be an upgraded version of the existing metro trains, also called EuroCity and EMU. TinyPixelGames@gmail.comQ: What should I do if a user sends an email to the wrong address? I've been working in a big company for a couple of years now. We just moved to a new office and they've given me a new email address. When a colleague sends me an email it arrives correctly at my new email address, but when I reply to the email it arrives on my old email address. Should I try to block this person from any further communication until they switch to my new address, or just keep on replying to their emails? A: If the user sends from your old address to your old address, they might well be doing this deliberately, to annoy you. I would use the following approach: Try to have the user change their email address If this doesn't work, come up with a solution that works for the team. Depending on the size of the team, it might be easiest for the whole team to switch to a new mail system, or a "catch-all" approach. If this doesn't work, report the user to IT or whoever is responsible for technology. In the rare case that it really is a genuine mistake, and I'm sure it's not deliberate, then you've already suggested that you will need to work through the process of changing the email address. A
