[Latest]

The year is 2039, and the incident that happened a year ago has reached the "end stage." At the time of the incident, it was a single night. More than ten students committed suicide that night, including students from three different parties in a single night. The party that happened in The Third Party passed away. Kadodawari seems to be where the students who belonged to The Third Party ended up. And yet, we can say that it might have had some effect on the end. Or rather, it was nothing to do with it. The value of a person in the eyes of the world went down a little bit. At that time, we were connecting their death to the event that happened a year ago. But in reality, all the adults knew was that the ten, who were members of our club, passed away. This was the start. Nobody could see that it was a result of the event a year ago. Only a few people knew. But the future is different. It is one year later. The date is August 2039. "The End." The only people who know this is us. The other three parties. But it's not over yet. Because the event that happened a year ago is the foundation of the present. The gateway into the future. This is how everything was started... So we exist before the event? Yes, the foundation of the starting point is the event of a year ago. Before the date "NEXT YEAR" on the poster of The Third Party. That's where the countdown started. That's why even though the date had come, because of the single student who had a difficulty connecting from a distance, there was no outward expression from the various parties as to what was to come. But whether they were headed for the same destination or not, it was all the same to us. Hiromi Usagi, Souta, and Yumi Oyama had been self-determined, and they had decided to embark on their adventure. They did not know where it would lead. But the "narrator" who told me was hungry for a new adventure. In the end, the curiosity over the world of tomorrow, and the desire to learn about the incident that happened a year ago. That's why the "narrator" told me... That's why he showed me...

New Delhi: It is 2018 and self-driving cars are not just a possibility in the distant future, they have arrived, top executives from Uber have said in a recent interview with NDTV. It was just five years ago, when an Uber driver hit a woman sitting in a bicycle rickshaw. The woman died in the impact, and the current crop of self-driving cars is believed to have played a key role in saving her life. Uber has often boasted that it

What's new:

Updated on May 31, 2012 You know the all powerful Gai Dageba. He's the commentator of all tournaments that take place in Japan. He's also one of the best players that you'll ever see. And he's the greatest, strongest man you'll ever meet. But what he has to say about certain topics have been a mystery to many players for quite some time now. If you want to know what "Fan" - Kuro - had to say, read on. 1: Who is Taishi? As I've mentioned before in this article, the character "Taishi" is not a real ichiban. And he's not even a pro player. In reality, he's the name of a forum board that Kuro started after his poor performance at the 2012 Kansai Open. Despite the fact that he "seems" to be very skilled, he still at times gets beat by the top players in top-ranked tournaments. He can never play how he wants to play. And it seems that these players are also able to "talk" their way to victory against him. It's almost a performance. See for yourself: In the first game, there's hardly any action at all. The same thing happens in the second game. While in the third game, it's very obvious that Taishi takes a TP from Kuro, who's in the left hand corner of the screen and that's why Taishi is winning so easily. On the other hand, when I look at this subpar performance by Taishi, I'm impressed. In 4 games, he didn't loose against Kuro once. Rather than getting demoralized by this, Taishi runs away from the keyboard and demands others in the community to "just remove me." Although he's no longer on the computer, this can be clearly heard: I don't feel sorry for Taishi since he knew about this people for a long time, and since he ran away from the keyboard, he might have learned something. BUT he should have bit harder when he had the chance to face Kuro as a player. I would've never stood for such nonsense and I would've immediately kicked him out. He left me, Introduction A few days ago I posted about the visual difference between the PS4 and Xbox One. When compared side by side, the Xbox One's design seems to be more polished, refined, and defined while the PS4 has an instantly recognizable look. It's also a bit clunkier than the one-piece casing on the Xbox One. It has a lot of unnecessary blinking lights, loud be
