There are various free trial versions available for the software. What is Photoshop? Adobe Photoshop is a photo retouching and image editing software package that allows you to touch up images, crop and resize images, cut or paste different images together, or even draw over images with special drawing tools. It includes high-quality tools for modifying portraits, architecture, and various other kinds of images. Many professionals create their own high-quality professional photos with Photoshop. Adobe

Photoshop features include: Resize and Reshape Have you ever wanted to zoom in and change the size of an image while maintaining the proportions of the image? This might be easier using Photoshop than cropping your image using other software. This is because the resizing function in Photoshop is under the Resize tool. Unlike many other graphics programs, Photoshop has two separate resize functions. The first one is the Horizontal and Vertical Resize tool. It lets you quickly make the height and width of your image go up or down without altering the proportions of the original image. This tool works in the same way the Crop tool does and is the exact same size as the Crop tool. The Resize tool gives you four different options. The default option has a slider which allows you to make the height and width adjust as you drag the slider. The middle option has a text box where you can enter a new size in inches, centimeters, and pixels. This is a very convenient tool for most graphics editing needs. The last option is the Different Resize tool. This is a quick tool for changing the sizes of one or more images without changing their ratios. You can enter a percentage of the change you want to make in this tool. Lasso Photoshop has a Lasso tool that allows you to make precise selections of any shape on an image. You don't have to try to figure out the selections by hand and just pick an area of the image. Your mouse clicks automatically select everything inside the shape. Then you can adjust and fine tune your selection. Once you complete your selection, you can further refine it using the Selection tool. This tool has options for making selections smaller and larger than your shape. You can also increase or decrease the amount of transparency in a selection. The other selection tools allow you to select different parts of an image 05a79cecff

Found: Missing-in-action Mariners Jason Bay Some Mariners fans are hoping for a miracle and wish the outfielder came down with the flu or needed to see a doc while he was playing. The Mariners are considering the fact that he might have told reporters the injury was “something minor,” so they are giving him a couple of days to make up his mind. If the cancer isn’t back, they get to take the terrible news a little easier. If it is back...well, they think people won’t like it, either. Today, Bay’s lumbar spine fractured while he was getting up to run to first. When he got up, he said he got the bug and knew he wouldn’t make it. Good thing it didn’t last. He’s home now and gone for surgery on Monday. The Mariners are searching for someone to fill in as part of a platoon with Chris Taylor. C.J. Wilcox is the backup outfielder, with a .222/.333/.312 line, but he has played just 15 games at the MLB level. The Mariners have been using Wilcox sparingly for the better part of a month, but over the last week, he has played in seven games as they “tried” to get injured players back into the lineup. Yesterday was his first start. He seems like he could hit the ball well enough to work around in a pinch. But the ball looks bad, even for a minor-league ball. His strikeout rate is down from about 30% last year to 19% so far this year. He has hit four home runs in 138 at-bats, so he isn’t hitting them very often, but he has been the type to hit them when they come. He has been in the line-up because Michael Saunders was on the disabled list and he had been playing good, he has faced most of the teams he has faced. He has fared well. He said: “The touts and black-market traders near to the mosque, which are just outside the Indian High Commission compound, were infesting the streets. The Indian High Commissioner in Islamabad has been in touch with me to say that he and his Pakistani counterpart are not happy with the extent of the touts. They are unhappy because of the impact on the daily lives of local people.” At a daily prayer session for Muslim men, the Imams prayed for the Indian High Commissioner, Ram Mad
