I have used 8.0.4422 Portable (64-bit) to clean my system.The invention relates to the use of carbamoylphosphine compositions and more particularly to the use of carbamoylphosphine compositions for suppressing hydrogenation of unsaturated compounds, especially those containing double bonds, under hydrogenation conditions. Polymeric polycyclic carbonate compounds are known to be useful as melt processable polymeric materials. These polymers are usually characterized by a combination of chemical and physical properties which make them useful in applications such as engineering thermoplastics. In particular, the polymers are characterized by high temperature resistance, strength, and toughness, as well as the ability to be melt processed. Some polycyclic carbonate polymers exhibit an abnormally high T_g, for example, polycarbonates made from diphenols of 1,1-bis(4-hydroxyphenyl)methane, also known as 1,1-bis(4-hydroxyphenyl)ethane. Such polycarbonates exhibit high glass transition temperatures and consequently high softening points. The chemical structure of these polymers includes linear chains of repeating units having the formula: ##STR1## where R is an aromatic hydrocarbon such as phenyl or naphthyl and each R' independently is a hydrogen, halogen, alkyl, alkoxy, or nitro group. While such polycyclic carbonate polymers are useful for providing new and useful polymers, it is also desirable to provide polymers, preferably a melt processable polymers, that maintain the combination of high temperature resistance, strength, toughness, and melt processability and which do not suffer
